Introduction

In fall 2004, the campuses of the University of New Mexico served 33,264 students; employed 3,145 faculty, 7,456 staff, and 5,231 students (an additional 4,378 staff work at University Hospital); and had a total operating and capital budget of about $1.48 billion. In the previous academic year, UNM awarded 4,747 degrees and certificates.

This fact book presents data for all UNM campuses. UNM consists of a Main Campus located in Albuquerque, which includes the Health Sciences Center, Extended University, and Continuing Education, and four branch campuses, which have a two-year degree mission: UNM-Gallup, UNM-Los Alamos, UNM-Taos, and UNM-Valencia. The Extended University provides access to courses on-site and via technologies—including satellite broadcasts, videoconferencing, and on-line instruction—throughout the state. The Extended University also encompasses the Upper Division & Graduate Centers at Los Alamos and Santa Fe and upper division and graduate course delivery at Taos, Gallup, Kirtland Air Force Base, and Rio Rancho. The UNM Health Sciences Center and its programs—which include the School of Medicine, College of Nursing, and College of Pharmacy—are sometimes reported in the Fact Book as part of the Main Campus and sometimes separately. Footnotes and labels should make it clear in each case what is included.

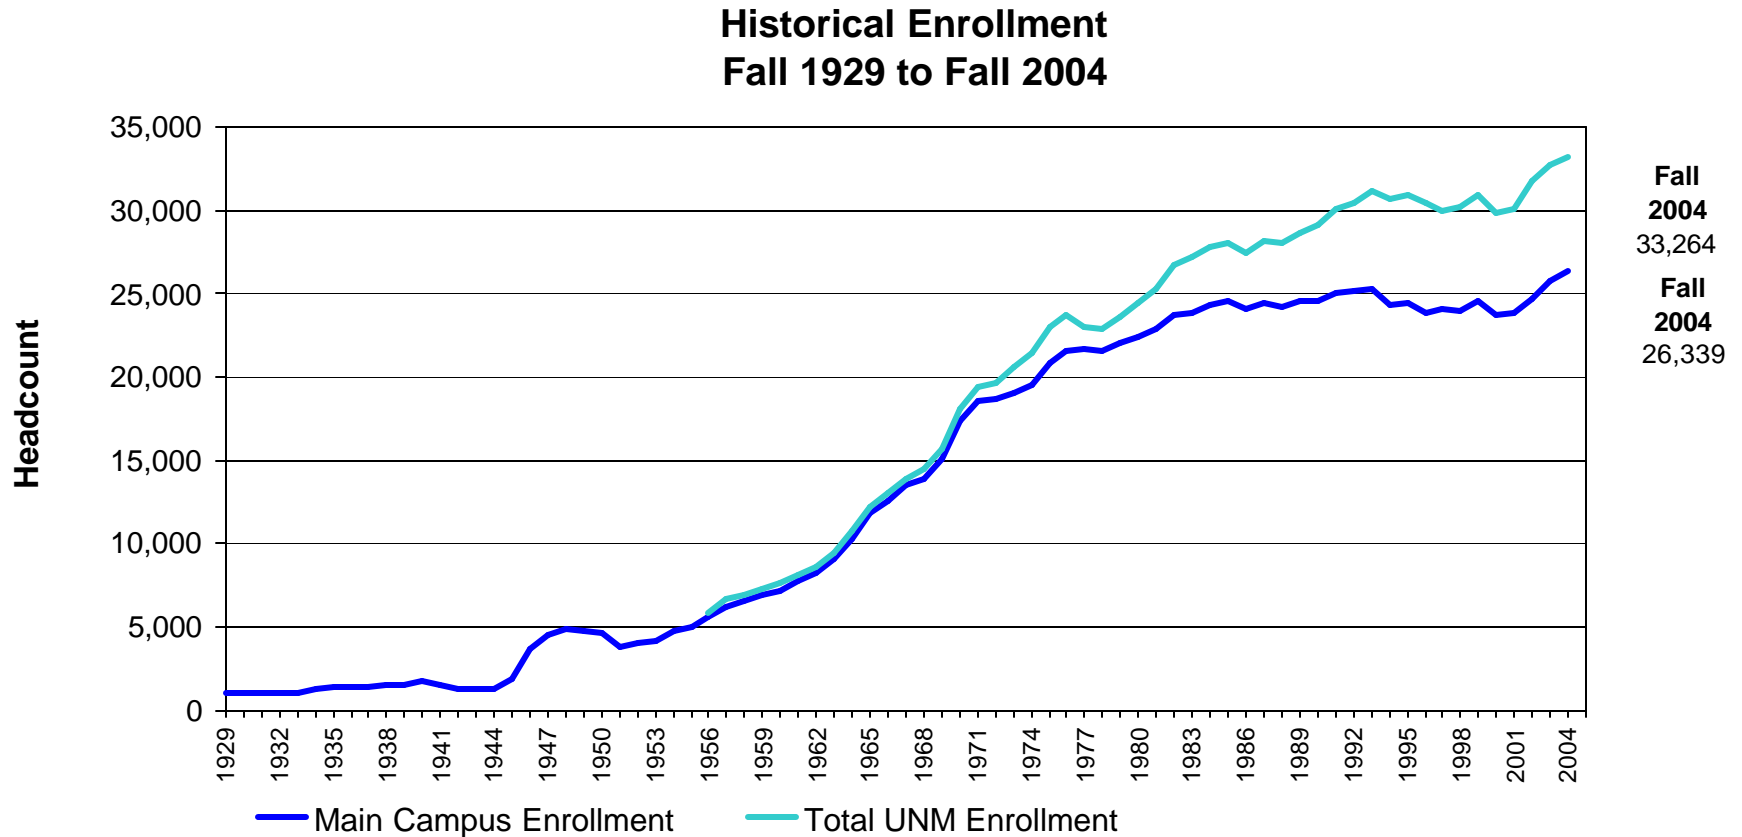

An additional unit of the University of New Mexico is the Division of Continuing Education and Community Services, which serves approximately 20,000 students annually in various non-credit or certificate courses, workshops, and training sessions. Approximately 200,000 community and UNM participants use the Conference Center facility each year.

The University offers an Evening and Weekend Degree Program (EWDP) in which nearly 40 complete degree programs are available, and core courses are offered in a number of additional degree programs. About 1,000 classes are offered each semester after 4:00 p.m. or on weekends. Approximately 12,000 non-traditional, working students attend UNM at night each semester. The following list of degree programs are marked with an * if the entire program is available in the EWDP and with a + if several core courses in a program are offered through EWDP.

The UNM main campus libraries represent the largest academic collections in the state. Materials are collected in a wide variety of formats in addition to books and journals—including electronic journals and books, manuscripts, recordings, and photographs among others. Access to our collections and the collections of other libraries in the state is available on-line via the LIBROS electronic catalog. The LIBROS catalog is hosted by the University Libraries for the state, serving 25 academic and special library collections in New Mexico. Instruction on research strategies and use of library resources is provided for faculty, students, and staff through formal classes and one-on-one instruction. In 2003, the main campus libraries ranked 62 out of 113 academic libraries in the Association of Research Libraries (ARL). UNM holds membership in the largest information scientific and technology consortium in America—the Alliance for Innovation in Science and Technology Information. The University Libraries is also a Federal Depository, an Official Patent and Trademark Library, and houses the Map and Geographic Information Center. The libraries' lending network includes the OCLC (50,540 libraries), the Greater Western Library Alliance (30 libraries), the National Network of Libraries of Medicine (5,432 libraries)—a program of the National Library of Medicine, and the Amigos network (754 libraries).
